

ABSTRACT

The invention provides a stent made from a material operable to perform a stent's desired therapeutic functions, and also made from a material that has a radiopacity that substantially preserves the appearance of the stent when the stent is viewed under a CT
5 imaging beam. Such a stent can allow for follow-up of the stent and the surrounding blood-vessel on CT.